1	Overly complicated/confusing procedures to set up billing with AnthemBC. I also work with Beacon (Partnership) and that was simple and highly responsive. AnthemBC is a nightmare as they don't return emails for weeks and then the info does not answer my questions. Phone calls go on for hours with no-one taking responsibility for my problems. Since I am the only therapist in this little town (Weed), BC clients will have to go elsewhere as I cannot continue to see them ProBono as I have been doing for some time now.	5/2/2017 10:30 AM
2	Recently had a client who has spent around $15,000 out of pocket since beginning of 2017. Insurance is claiming they have not met deductible, and that they have a separate co-pay for mental health, which has not been met, so they won't pay. Also claim, despite being vendors with company for years, that in this specific case, I'm not on panel. They have told my biller that he cannot re-bill the insurance company--they read the riot act to him, and he read it to me.	4/23/2017 9:01 AM

1	As may be apparent, my biggest issues are with insurance companies, specifically AnthemBC. Although listed as a non-panel provider since 2009, my attempt to become a panel provider, although accepted, has been a nightmare. At this point I plan on terminating my status and complaining to the State Ins. Com. I am the only therapist in this small town and easily a third of my clients can be (and are) insured by Blue Cross. But since I have not been paid, at all, and no help evidently coming, I will terminate and refer any potential clients to other therapists located many miles away.	5/2/2017 10:58 AM

3	The fact that all things provided by CAMFT are so far away, and require an overnight stay is frustrating. It's as if the true North State, above Sacramento is totally ignored.	4/23/2017 9:25 AM

2	Do you pursue spiritual/faith educational training to be culturally competent to treat spiritually diverse clients? Do you believe Gender Identity Disphoria should be removed from the DSM as a mental illness? What is/are areas of bias that require you to refer to other therapists? (Perpetrators, Islam, certain faiths)	4/23/2017 7:23 AM
3	A question that contrasts expanded reimbursement opportunities with decreased patient care/increased administration costs. CAMFT is an amazingly effective and wonderful organization. I am probably in the minority, but it's ironic that as doctors are forced into large practices and out of private practice, we are celebrating LMFTs gaining parity. I'm sure this is great for many. For me it means less freedom and more expectation that I will comply with low reimbursement and more regulatory oversight. Or in other words, more access to low wage jobs in big organizations.....Which isn't my focus. :)	4/22/2017 6:01 AM
