6	Had to move counties, no one was hiring, only hiring LMFT's, said lack of experience was a factor (how can I gain experience if I can't get an internship, and some required one to have 1,500 prior to taking on an intern fresh out of college), financially you have to take the free positions to get hours but then you have to get hours part-time to pay the bills, or they give the worst cases to interns (one's we are ill-equipped to handle due to lack of experience, then offer that without guidance that would become experience even though you don't know if you helped or did harm), had to move twice just to look for an internship (once from Northern California, to San Diego, to Riverside just to find any internship that would take interns with only traineeship experience), and many internships were only offered to previous trainees so you couldn't get a job there because you didn't have your traineeship there.	1/16/2015 9:09 AM
